

This musical frontiersman will be sorely missed. He was a musical museum of American folk life who regularly entertained in bluegrass clubs and at outdoor festivals until the end of his years.

Though he was born in Kentucky, those of us from Tennessee proudly claim Bill Monroe as one of our own. He was a fixture on the Grand Ole Opry, and he spent much of his time in and around Nashville when he wasn't out on the road, playing for the massive crowds that always came out to hear him.

Bill Monroe didn't talk much, but his feelings came out eloquently when he was behind his mandolin and in front of an audience. Songs like "Blue Moon of Kentucky," "Uncle Pen," and "Rawhide" have already stood the test of time to become classics, and Bill Monroe's original gift comes through in each note.

He was born September 13, 1911 in rural western Kentucky into a family where nearly everyone played a musical instrument. The youngest of eight children, he went on to win numerous awards, including a Grammy and the National Medal of Arts for his life's achievement.

Almost no kind of music can be traced to the work of a single person, but bluegrass is different. It will always belong to Bill Monroe. His contribution to music is unequalled, and he will be greatly missed by all of us.●

CURIOUS CASE OF WHITE HOUSE VERSUS UNITED NATIONS

● Mr. SIMON. Mr. President, I have already mentioned to my colleagues that I think we are mishandling the matter of the election of the U.N. Secretary General.

Our inattention to the needs beyond our boarder—as well as to poverty here at home is not something Americans can be proud of.

And our failure to pay U.N. dues, our failure to join other nations in peace-keeping operations too frequently, our reluctance to lead when leadership is essential, and our negative tone toward U.N. Secretary-General Boutros Boutros-Ghali have all been mistakes.

Recently Georgie Anne Geyer had a column in the Chicago Tribune commenting about our handling of the Boutros-Ghali matter.

Georgie Anne Geyer is an experienced observer of the international scene; and when she comments on something like this, we should listen carefully to what she says.

Mr. President, I ask that the article from the Chicago Tribune be printed in the RECORD.

The article follows:

CURIOUS CASE OF WHITE HOUSE VERSUS THE U.N.

(By Georgie Anne Geyer)

NEW YORK.—The international storm brewing here began May 13, when U.S. Secretary of State Warren Christopher received UN

Secretary-General Boutros Boutros-Ghali and told the controversial Egyptian diplomat flatly, "President Clinton does not want to give you a second mandate."

According to internal reports at the United Nations here, Boutros-Ghali said, only partly in jest, "Look, you are a good lawyer: Defend my case." To which, Christopher responded, not in jest at all, "I am the lawyer of the president of the United States and not yours."

Not only was this curious case of the White House versus the UN Plaza not "rested," but all hell then broke loose on a number of continents and in the corridors of myriad foreign ministries, from Beijing to Budapest.

Christopher followed up the initial shock announcement by putting forward the idea of a "compromise" by which Boutros-Ghali would stay one year and then leave. (To which the Egyptian diplomat responded tartly: "is this some sort of 'tip'? If so, it's not very generous.")

Next, in Bonn for meeting, Boutros-Ghali received a private phone call from New York warning him that an announcement would come from the State Department in Washington the next day that the United States no longer supported him. (And so, at that point, Boutros-Ghali, who is no slouch when it comes to tactics, peremptorily moved on this unique geopolitical chessboard, announcing his intention to seek re-election for another five-year term.)

On July 8, the drama moved to Africa—to the Organization of African Unity meeting in Yaounde, Cameroon—where Washington sent an unusually large delegation of nine senior diplomats to try to sidetrack any support for the secretary-general.

Instead, Only three of the 54 African member states voted against the Egyptian UN leader, one of those being war-torn Rwanda, which opposed him because of his criticism of the massacres there.

If all of that were not enough, threats began to come out of the American administration that it would use its veto in the Security Council if Boutros-Ghali were backed this fall by a majority in the United Nations. But this presents a still further conundrum, for after the Cold War ended, Security Council members agreed not to use the veto, in order to free the UN from the constricting manner in which the Soviet Union had used it for so many years.

All of this is now at a classic diplomatic impasse. From a day and more of interviewing in the UN, I can say that many, many foreign diplomats are mad as hell at what they perceive as a repetition of historical American arrogance.

Floating around the United Nations now is the idea of a new "compromise" by which the secretary-general would accept a face-saving extension of his term. But that would not affect the main problem of this UN very much at all.

The real problem is that this administration tries to assert its power on matters like the choice of a secretary-general but consistently refused to show any leadership on the big issues facing the post-Cold War UN. If the UN has been less than what it could have been in these pivotal years, the primary responsibility for that failure has not been Boutros-Ghali's.●

RETIREMENT OF REAR ADM. THOMAS F. HALL, U.S. NAVY, CHIEF OF NAVAL RESERVE

● Mr. INHOFE. Mr. President, I rise today to recognize the dedication, public service, and patriotism of Rear Adm. Thomas F. Hall, U.S. Navy, Chief of Naval Reserve. Admiral Hall retires from the Navy on October 1, after a distinguished 37-year career of service to our Nation.

A native of Barnsdall, OK, Admiral Hall reported to the U.S. Naval Academy in 1959, graduated in 1963 and was designated a naval aviator in 1964. After earning his Wings of Gold, Admiral Hall chose to join the maritime patrol forces flying the new P-3 Orion. Excelling in flight training, he graduated No. 1 in his class, and was named the outstanding student. Admiral Hall continued to distinguish himself throughout his flying career amassing almost 5,000 pilot hours.

His initial fleet assignment was with Patrol Squadron 8, flying combat missions in Southeast Asia. Subsequent tours included the U.S. Naval Academy, as a Company Officer and Executive Assistant to the Commandant of Midshipmen, Patrol Squadron 23, completion of the command and staff course at the Naval War College, graduating with distinction, and assignment to the Bureau of Naval Personnel, where his billets included aviation staffs placement officer, head of air combat placement, and assistant head of aviation junior officer assignment. Admiral Hall returned to VP-8 as executive officer and then assumed duties as Commanding Officer. Admiral Hall also completed the course of instruction at the National War College, again graduating with distinction, and served on the staff of the Chief of Naval Operations where he served as Head of the Program Objective Memorandum Development section, as Chief of Staff to Commander Fleet Air Keflavik, and as a fellow to the CNO's strategic studies group. In addition to command of VP-8, Admiral Hall has also served in command of Naval Air Station Bermuda, the Icelandic Defense Forces, and most recently, command of the Naval Reserve.

Since September 1992, Admiral Hall has been the Chief of Naval Reserve, leading the Naval Reserve Force through its largest drawdown, while maintaining readiness and significantly increasing reserve contributory support to the fleet. Under Admiral Hall's leadership, the total force policy became a reality—Regular Navy and Naval Reservists working side-by-side, in operations worldwide, meeting the Navy's forward presence requirements.

In August 1989, Admiral Hall was promoted to Rear Admiral—lower half—and in July 1992 to his present rank of Rear Admiral—upper half. Admiral Hall wears the Defense Superior Service Medal, Legion of Merit, Meritorious Service Medal, Meritorious Unit Commendation, and various unit and campaign awards, holds a masters degree in management from George Washington University and attended Harvard University senior executives program. In July 1992, Admiral Hall was awarded the Icelandic Order of the Falcon, Commander's Cross with star, by the President of Iceland.
